Henry VI, Part 3

BY MATT WINDMAN
amNewYork theater critic

"Henry VI, Part 3," one of Shakespeare's earliest history plays, is not exactly his finest. As the final part of the War of the Roses history cycle, it is essentially stuffed with two key ingredients: over-the-top family melodrama and bloody battles.

Rarely seen on stage, this ambitious off-off-Broadway uncut and unadulterated "Henry VI, Part 3" should be of great interest to Shakespeare fanatics. Director Adam Marple, who views the unwieldy play through the lens of a medieval morality drama, provides a mostly accessible, entertaining and well-acted production.

Some of Marple's directorial touches are a bit overstated. A

Expect many battle scenes.

IF YOU GO

"Henry VI, Part 3"
• East 13th Street Theatre through July 24.
• 136 E. 13th St., 212-352-3101, wideeyedproductions.com

giant image of the late Henry V looms over the set, and actor Jerrod Bogard stays onstage during the entire show to change the set, stare weirdly at the actors and deliver all the messenger lines.

If you attend, we advise you to review your English history first. Otherwise, you might find yourself hopelessly lost within the first 10 minutes.

War of the Roses timeline:

- 1450: Return of Richard, Duke of York, from Ireland
- 1453: Henry VI of England's first bout of mental illness
- 1455: War of the Roses begins with the First Battle of St. Albans
- 1460: Richard, Duke of York, killed at the battle of Wakefield
- 1471: Henry VI dies in Tower of London
- 1485: Richard III killed at the Battle of Bosworth; Henry VII crowned

'Puppetry of the Penis' seeks new, uh, talent

Got a passion for genital origami? Not afraid of exposing yourself in front of a crowd? The unconventional comedy "Puppetry of the Penis" is searching for new "penis puppeteers," or rather "genital artists." An open call will be held on July 27 at 45 Bleecker St.

Spotted ...

Daniel Day-Lewis and Ben Stiller at Shake-speare in the Park's "The Merchant of Venice" on Saturday night, followed by Lea Michele and her boyfriend, Theo Stockman, attending "The Winter's Tale" on Sunday night.

Casting notice ...

Sandy Duncan, Victoria Clark and Adriane Lenox will join the off-Broadway cast of "Love, Loss and What I Wore" on July 28. ... Tate Donovan will join Frances McDormand in the new Broadway play "Good People" next season. ... Charles Busch will return to off-Broadway in his new comedy "The Divine Sister" at the SoHo Playhouse.

ALSO SHOWING

A Disappearing Number

This new play about the legendary friendship between Cambridge professor G.H. Hardy and Brahmin genius Srinivasa Ramanujan goes so far as to start with a theoretical discussion of the concept of infinity. Will people who aren't mathematicians be able to follow it? It received much acclaim in London. (MM)
